

Some interesting thoughts

But technology acts invisibly, often with dubious consent, and typically using a dialect only a few can speak.

The public generally can't defend themselves against algorithmic bias or seek recourse.

If your algorithmic luck is out, there's not much you can do except pray.