

SUMMER READING WITH FRIENDS

OH NO WHAT ARE WE GONNA DO

Reading With Friends

what's the goal of reading with friends (over the summer/in general)?

- source and share interesting papers?
- share our interests?
- teach undergrads concepts we need/want them to know?
- something else?
- some combination of the above?

FORMATS THAT HAVE WORKED

recent & obscure papers

papers from the latest conferences

- + Keep up to date on stuff
- Favors new work more than impactful work

foundational papers

HCI quals review

- + structured, good review for quals(?), good practice talking about work
- not as interesting; gets repetitive for returning students (ie all of the graduate students)

idk

arbitrary topics and papers we like

- + lots of variety, more enthusiastic presentations
- not clear how (if) it'll enhance undergrads' education or experience
